Police hunt man in assault of girl

FLUSHING. Police are searching for a man who they say sexually assaulted an 8-year-old girl Monday.

According to police, the suspect entered the second floor of a building in Flushing, sexually assaulted the girl and fled the scene.

Cops are asking anyone with information about the suspect, described as male, Hispanic, and from 20 to 30 years old with a thin build, black hair and a drawstring backpack, to call 800-577-TIPS. METRO/AB

HIV infections persist in NYC

City residents put off HIV tests ◐ Health department says this often means AIDS diagnosis ◐ Most at-risk include new to the country or wealthy

Despite campaigns and condoms to convince New Yorkers to have safe sex and get tested, thousands still walk the city's streets unaware that they are infected with HIV — and often are too scared to get tested.

But waiting can bring consequences: In data released yesterday, the health department estimated that 1 in 5 HIV-infected New Yorkers do not know their status, and 1,000 each year are sick with AIDS by the time they are tested.

The most at-risk are immigrants who avoid testing because they think an HIV diagnosis will imperil their right to live in the country, said Dr. Monica Sweeney, assistant commissioner of the Health Department's Bureau of HIV/AIDS Prevention and Control.

But others simply have less fear of an HIV diagnosis, said psychotherapist Jonathan Alpert.

"I've heard of people willingly having unprotected sex with people they know to have HIV in a moment of passion," he said. "It doesn't have the social stigma of 20 years ago."

"A lot of people who think they're positive delay testing as long as they feel well, and when they don't feel well, then they test."

Right now, the Health Department is studying New Yorkers to find out how many know about their HIV status.

The number of diagnoses is decreasing, but the idea persists that AIDS cannot reach everyone.

"It's stubbornly there," Sweeney said.

Also avoiding testing? People in affluent areas like Westchester — who assume they do not have the disease.

"Because they've been in denial about their risk, they're surprised to find out that they're positive," Sweeney said.

Scared of proper protection

New Yorkers might not be doing enough to protect themselves against diseases or sexually transmitted infections. Babeland employee Jen May, 34, said shoppers are unsure about condoms because they think they won't be able to feel anything.

"I think people initially are hesitant about condoms because they think they'll be uncomfortable." METRO/EAE

Celebrated artist free after months of captivity

Ai Weiwei was held for nearly three months on tax-evasion charges

PHOTOS: GETTY IMAGES

▶ Ai Weiwei's outdoor exhibition, titled "Circle of Animals/ Zodiac Heads," is at Grand Army Plaza in Manhattan.

Renowned artist Ai Weiwei, 54, was released by the Chinese government yesterday after months of incarceration.

Weiwei, an active political commentator, Chinese national and installation sculptor who created New York City sculptures, was held for nearly three months on tax-evasion charges.

International pressure from the arts and political community was said to have expedited his release.

At the opening of Weiwei's sculpture installation at the Pulitzer fountain on 59th Street in midtown last month, Mayor Michael Bloomberg urged for Weiwei's freedom. "The fact that we do not know where he is, or when he will be released, is very disturbing," he said at the time.

The artist was reportedly released on bail for his "good attitude in confessing" to charges.

Yesterday, Bloomberg said, "As a former resident with a unique and creative voice, Ai Weiwei's connections to New York City have become even stronger since he lived here, and thousands enjoy his sculpture exhibition daily."

BRONX. A 17-year-old girl allegedly assaulted a Bronx bus driver when she wasn't permitted to bring her pup on board.

Police said Steangeli Medina hopped on the Bx9 on Fordham Road when driver Marlene Bien-Aime, 48, told her the dog must be in a crate to come along. Medina then punched the driver, dragged her off the bus and kicked her repeatedly, a source told the New York Daily News.

The driver was taken to St. Barnabas Hospital with a black eye and facial cuts.

Two questioned in quadruple murder on LI

Man and wife taken into custody ● She's reportedly addicted to pills ● Four died in Medford pharmacy

A Long Island man was pulled out of his house for questioning yesterday in the murder of four people at a pharmacy.

David Laffer, 33, and his wife Melinda Brady, 29, were reportedly taken into custody by Suffolk County police from their Medford home.

A Suffolk County police spokesperson would not comment on any suspects or arrests, but the New York Post reported that the one witness in the case, a man waiting in the car for his fiancee, identified Laffer in the lineup.

Friends told reporters that the wife had a problem with prescription pills.

Police have been searching for a man they said entered Haven Pharmacy in Medford, Long Island, after 10 a.m. Sunday and shot four people, fleeing with stolen prescription drugs.

The victims of the shooting were employees Raymond Ferguson, 45, and Jennifer Mejia, 17, and customers Bryon Sheffield, 71, and Jamie Taccetta, 33.

LONDON. Harry Potter creator J.K. Rowling will unveil her latest venture involving the boy wizard today, ending fevered speculation among fans about what comes next.

Having announced a new website (www.pottermore.com), the British author has kept its contents a closely guarded secret.

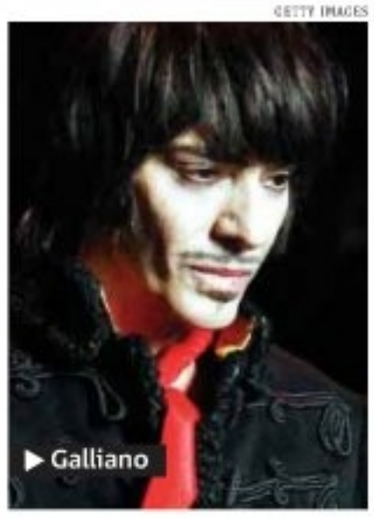
Designer blames outburst on vices

- Anti-Semitism trial sees John Galliano blaming booze and drugs
- Fashion designer doesn't remember hurling insults at Paris cafe

GETTY IMAGES



▶ Galliano

Fashion designer John Galliano told a Paris court yesterday that he was so out of control on drugs and alcohol he does not recall hurling anti-Semitic insults at strangers in a bar earlier this year.

Galliano arrived in a hushed courtroom wearing long sandy hair, his trademark razor-thin mustache and leather trousers, prepared to defend himself against charges of anti-Semitic behavior.

He stood as a judge read out charges against him and repeated statements he allegedly made in an incident in a Paris cafe on Feb. 24, including "dirty Jewish face" and "f—ing ugly Jewish b—."

Asked whether he remembered the insults, Galliano said: "I don't remember very well. ... I have no recollection."

"I have a triple addiction," he added. "Alcohol, sleeping pills and Valium."

Galliano's career is in tatters. He was fired from fashion house Dior in March, after a video online showed him drunkenly telling a woman he loved Hitler and saying her parents might have been gassed in a Nazi death camp.

Magistrates are expected to arrive at a decision quickly in the trial, which pits Galliano, 50, against two accusers — a woman who claimed not to have heard of him before their February encounter and another whose accusations refer back to events last October. REUTERS

If he's guilty

If found guilty, Galliano faces a six-month jail sentence and a fine of up to 22,000 euros ($31,517). Precedents in similar cases suggests that a more likely outcome is a smaller fine — a few thousand euros at most.

▶ U.S. Army SFC John Roger Price from Viper Company (Bravo), 1-26 Infantry, scans the horizon yesterday at Combat Outpost Sabari in Khost province in eastern Afghanistan.

Obama: Bring them home

President Barack Obama announced yesterday a plan to start bringing U.S. troops home from Afghanistan in a significant first step toward ending the long, costly Afghan war.

In a televised address, Obama said he would pull 10,000 troops from Afghanistan by year's end, followed by about 23,000 more by the end of next summer.

Troops will be withdrawn at a steady pace after that, Obama said, as the United States, struggling to repair its global image and fix its weak domestic economy, looks to end a decade of military ventures prompted by the Sept. 11 attacks in 2001.

"Huge challenges remain. This is the beginning — but not the end of our effort to wind down this war," Obama said. "America, it is time to focus on nation building at home."

News that Obama will pull the entire 'surge' force he sent to Afghanistan in 2010 caps weeks of speculation about the future of U.S. involvement there and could increase friction between Obama and military advisors who have warned about the perils of a hasty drawdown. REUTERS

On the ground, nothing is different

U.S. Lt. Jonathan Austin's men spent yesterday as they expect to spend the better part of a year — patrolling grape orchards in the blazing desert sun, scrambling over mud walls and scanning the paths of Chariagen village for homemade bombs.

Word had not filtered down to their outpost in southern Afghanistan's Kandahar province that President Barack Obama was to announce his plans for starting to bring home U.S. troops.

For the men charged with the tough daily grind of fighting on the frontline of the near decade-long war in Afghanistan, the big decision will have little impact.

"It won't change our job any," Austin said with a shrug. "We've still got a year of fighting here." REUTERS

Text skills impaired by Botox

Are you a typical American teenager who sends more than 1,000 text messages each month? If so, Botox might impair your communication prowess, suggests a new report of a 17-year-old who had the treatment for an excessive sweating condition.

Doctors who use Botox said it's not entirely unexpected, since the injections have been linked to muscle weakness.

"I would definitely discuss this with my patients going forward as a specific potential side effect," said Dr. Julia Lehman from the Mayo Clinic in Minnesota, who treated the teenager.

Lehman's patient had a condition called hyperhidrosis, which causes a person to sweat much more than normal — usually on their palms, the soles of their feet or under their arms. Her patient suffered from the excessive sweating on her hands for a few years.

Botox contains a chemical that blocks the signal that releases sweat, Lehman explained. But it also relaxes other muscles not related to sweating.

A week after Botox, the patient sweated much less, but her texting skills had decreased as well, Lehman reported in the Archives of Dermatology. REUTERS

LOOK FAMILIAR?

Psoriasis patients are needed for a new research study testing an investigational oral treatment at The Rockefeller University Hospital.

THE WORD

Metro's Dorothy Robinson shares her take on the world of gossip @dorothyatmetro dorothy.robinson@metro.us

George Clooney: Single again

▶ Send in your best sales pitch to woo Clooney:
▶ dorothy.robinson@metro.us

Another one bites the dust: Elisabetta Canalis is now the latest name in the very long list of George Clooney's ex-girlfriends.

"We are not together anymore. It's very difficult and very personal, and we hope everyone can respect our privacy," Clooney and Canalis said in a joint statement yesterday. Added her publicist: "It is a very personal and sad matter, and Elisabetta wants it to remain that way. She will be taking some time ... and then will face the press. She has not authorized me to say when the split happened."

I know Clooney is one of the biggest actors on the planet, but is a joint press statement about their split really necessary? They dated for two years; it's not the signing of a war treaty or anything. And, really? "Respect their privacy"? Why do stars always say that — when have the media or the public ever "respected their privacy"? We'd look at pictures of them on the toilet without a second thought.

However, I digress, and am forgetting about the most important thing: George Clooney is single again. Hallelujah! Once he gets over this "difficult" time (read: five minutes), who do you think he should date next? If it's you, why don't you send in your best sales pitch to woo Clooney, and I'll reprint them here. Mine would be: "I, like you, have a giant head, an insider knowledge of the celebrity world you inhabit, loved 'Batman & Robin' even though no one else did and use salt and pepper on everything, in honor of you."

'Mad Men,' mad money

It was announced yesterday that "Mad Men" star Jon Hamm signed an eight-figure deal for three more years of the hit AMC show. And since the show's creator, Matthew Weiner, recently locked down a similar deal, we'll have a few more seasons of looking at that delicious mug of his.

And on the other end of the pay-raise spectrum, it was disclosed that Donald Trump is raking in $65 million a year on "Celebrity Apprentice," making him the highest paid reality star. No wonder he didn't want to run for president.

Talking points

Arnold pays up to Maria

They may not have initiated divorce proceedings yet, but Arnold Schwarzenegger is reportedly already paying Maria Shriver "a significant amount of child support," according to Radar Online. "Even though Maria is a Kennedy, and has inherited a great deal of money from her parents' estate since their deaths, she is taking the child support," a source says. As for the divorce itself, the source says it's just a matter of time: "Maria wants to get a fair divorce settlement, and move on with her life," the source says. "It would surprise people how gracious Maria is being about the entire situation. Maria doesn't want the kids to suffer because of stupid decisions their father made."

Harry and Pippa hang out

While their siblings enjoy being newlyweds, Prince Harry and Pippa Middleton have reportedly been spending some quality time together, according to Grazia. "They speak on the phone all the time and have met up at least five times since the wedding, once for tea at his Clarence House apartments," a source says. "She thinks he's got a really cheeky sense of humor." The pair have something else in common as well, as they're both recently single. "He only recently came out of a relationship, of course. He's been trying to cheer Pippa up," the source says.

A boy for January Jones?

If her shopping interests are any indication, January Jones is expecting a boy. The pregnant actress was spotted out in L.A. picking through baby clothes — all in the color blue, according to Just Jared. Despite rumors and speculation, the "Mad Men" star has still kept mum on the baby's father's identity. "She's really looking forward to this new chapter in her life as a single mom," her rep said when Jones' pregnancy was announced.

Billy Ray likes Miley's boyfriend a lot

Miley Cyrus is back together with boyfriend Liam Hemsworth, and her dad, Billy Ray Cyrus, couldn't be happier. "He's a great guy. He's solid. He's got great character," Billy Ray tells E! Online. "And I have to tell you, on or off the record, he's just a good guy. He's just a really good guy. I really like him a lot." Last week, Miley's brother Trace confirmed the couple was once again dating, telling Us Weekly that he and Hemsworth are "homies."

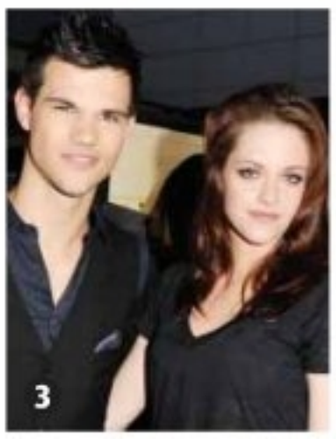
A Greek goddess, a werewolf and a vampire get the party started



1: Kylie Minogue, dressed up like Aphrodite (or maybe the Goodyear logo), stopped by Perth, Australia, yesterday as part of her epic "Aphrodite — Les Folies" tour.

2: Husband and wife team Anna Paquin (Suhkeh!) and Stephen Moyer (Beeeeil!) arrive at the premiere of HBO's "True Blood" Season 4 Tuesday night in Los Angeles.

3: Taylor Lautner and "Twilight" co-star Kristen Stewart popped up at the "A Better Life" World Premiere Gala Screening during the 2011 Los Angeles Film Festival in L.A. on Tuesday night. Are they dating? Probably not. But it's nice to dream, right?

4: Kim Cattrall was snapped leaving KISS FM yesterday in London.

5: Rachel Zoe and husband Rodger Berman showed off their newest accessory Tuesday night — son Skyler Morrison Berman — while at InStyle's Dinner With A Designer in honor of Zoe at the Soho House in West Hollywood. I love how that baby is all like, "Don't trade me in for a Birkin, Mom!"

6: Liv Tyler was a vision in blue at the Cinema Society & Grey Goose screening of "The Ledge" at Landmark Sunshine Cinema on Tuesday in New York City.

7: Oscar winner Kate Winslet attended the "Yo Dona" International Awards at the Palacio de Cristal de Arganzuela Tuesday night in Madrid.

What she's all about

Singer-songwriter Ledisi doesn't hold back on her new album It's on heavy rotation in the White House

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Catch Ledisi tonight at Celebrate Brooklyn at the Prospect Park Bandshell (Ninth Street and Prospect Park West, Brooklyn, 718-683-5600). The show starts at 7:30 p.m. and is free.

In 2004, singer-songwriter Ledisi — fed up with the pressure to conform to the mainstream music industry's female singer template — was ready to walk away from the biz. "I felt like quitting because I would send tapes to labels and wouldn't get picked up. I was told I would never make it," says the R&B-flavored coffeehouse singer. But persistence paid off — Verve signed the jazz-influenced star in the making, allowing her to record the albums "Lost & Found" and "Turn Me Loose," both of which were nominated for two Grammys. Last week marked the release of her latest effort, "Pieces of Me," so we caught up with the singer to talk about the message behind her self-confidence anthems and one of her most famous supporters who has shown the love — Michelle Obama.

Michelle Obama is a fan. What was it like meeting her?

She's very down to Earth. She turned people she knew to my music. She has invited me for events where I sang and was among other great artists, such as Sting and Jamie Foxx. And she invited me to participate in a woman's mentoring program. It was a huge confidence boost. I felt very honored. My music inspires her and she inspires me.

Quoted

"People who supported me love who I am."

LEDISI

On your new album, "Hate Me" and "Shut Up" are pretty powerful songs.

"Hate Me" is a song to celebrate the independence of women — women who don't chase after men. No matter what age group, people go bananas over this song because they can relate. I get a big response every time. "Shut Up" is a song going against what negative things people would say. I would never change my image to fit in. I was always about being yourself. METRO

Rollins

Their band could be Rollins' life

- Henry on eight nights of talking to Dinosaur Jr.
- Why he's leaving the music-making to others

Often called a Renaissance Man, Henry Rollins prefers to classify himself more modestly as a "jackass-of-all-trades." First gaining notoriety as the fourth and most famous singer in the hard core band Black Flag, Rollins is now a performer of spoken word, an author with his own publishing company, an actor, commentator and a relentless mouthpiece for hard-nosed opinions. He writes a music column for the LA Weekly and deejays a weekly radio show at KCRW in Santa Monica. This fall he'll release a documentary-styled travel photo book, "Occupants," and host National Geographic's new series, "Animal Underworld." Despite all of that, he takes on one of his strangest roles tonight — interviewing Dinosaur Jr. onstage before their set. The following is a short excerpt of an inspired interview with the always-motivated Rollins.

You're still involved in the music scene. Do you miss playing in bands?
I miss music, but I know that I wouldn't be able to do anything with it that would be any good. I don't want to do old material and I don't think anything I write that would be new would be worth it. ... I look at Mick Jagger singing that he "can't get no satisfaction" in front of 50,000 people [and] I have to come to the conclusion that he's either lying, or not that bright.

How serious are you going to be with the interviews?
Damned serious. I want to give the audience some context so 20 minutes later, when they hear the album live, they might consider the songs differently. ... They're doing a historic record and I think the questions should stick to the spirit of what they're doing onstage that night.

A chef's sweeter side

Heather Carlucci-Rodriguez dishes on running a restaurant with her husband ◗ And no, it isn't as stressful as you might think ◗ Why she likes it, and why she loves creating a lovely, lasting impression for guests

Famed pastry chef Heather Carlucci-Rodriguez (she's created desserts at L'Impero, Veritas, and Judson Grill, each receiving three stars each from The New York Times) is expanding her horizons — and her palate. Along with her husband, executive chef Charles Rodriguez, she's opened Print restaurant at the Ink48 Hotel in Hell's Kitchen. But don't worry, she still has complete control of the dessert menu.

Is it stressful or fun to work with your husband?
We don't really work together too much. I like to say that he takes care of the savory and I take care of the pastry. It's hard to believe, but we just don't run into each other that much since we deal with all the food and beverage of the restaurant and hotel. It's a big undertaking.

How would you define the cuisine you serve?
Well, I would call it new American with French and Italian influences. We also try to be as farm-to-table as possible. We have an in-house forager which really helps us build relationships between farms and farmers and makes Print super seasonal.

What's your favorite thing about being a pastry chef. Besides the chocolate, that is.
I like the fact that everyone loves dessert, or at least some sort of finish to the meal. I like being in charge of the end of the meal. Whether it's cheese or straight chocolate or something bitter, I just like closing out their experience.

Eleventh Avenue is a bit off the beaten path. Who comes to Print?
It's a big mix. A lot of locals as we're probably the only restaurant in this area. We get a lot of theater people as well as a good amount of foodies and people from the art world.

▶ "Cars 2"

1 'Cars 2' Pixar presents what might be the biggest animated release of summer. Owen Wilson and Larry the Cable Guy return to voice Lightning McQueen and Mater, respectively, as they head to the World Grand Prix.

2 'Bad Teacher' "Bad Teacher," "Horrible Bosses" ... apparently we're having a bit of an employment crisis in Hollywood. This one stars Cameron Diaz as a lazy junior high teacher who decides to get her act together in order to woo a hot new colleague (Justin Timberlake).

3 'Conan O'Brien Can't Stop' If you're not sick of Conan O'Brien making jokes about last year's Late Night drama on NBC, then you need to see this no-holds-barred account of the comedy tour he went on once he lost his "Tonight Show" spot to Jay Leno.

4 'The Green Lantern' This comic book adaptation celebrates one of the less notable superheroes, but with the support of co-stars Blake Lively and Peter Sarsgaard, this "Lantern" won't go dim — or will it?

5 'Mr. Popper's Penguins' Jim Carrey, as a somewhat self-absorbed dad, is forced to rethink his priorities once he inherits six penguins. And no, they don't talk. METRO

For all the single ladies

RE: 'THE LOWDOWN ON THE HOOK-UP,' 6/23: I'm annoyed that Mr. Alpert assumes most women "want a guy who says, 'You are the one I want, and I'm willing to do anything to make that happen.'" Flattering, but I'm also a single woman who doesn't desire a serious relationship and who has (gasp!) sexual needs. More women today are developing their careers before settling down. That's not to say we're suddenly celibate. Mr. Alpert should limit his short-sighted advice to fellow Quakers.

JENNIFER BELLENOIT, VIA E-MAIL

Gay rights, a la mode

Do you honestly believe this world was set up to be tiered into levels of equality? Say I set up an ice-cream station with rainbow sprinkles and I gave the person next to you some, but not everybody else. And let's say everyone else loves rainbow sprinkles. Wouldn't you feel disenfranchised? You'd ask why and I'd say it's the mainstream view that you should not have sprinkles. You'd look at me in disbelief. After reading several anti-gay marriage letters, this is how I felt. This is bigger than ice cream. Ice cream slowly melts, but inequality takes longer.

RYAN COONEY, VIA E-MAIL

RE: The road to Gomorrah?

According to David DiBello, the ability to procreate makes heterosexuals superior to homosexuals. Well, the average housefly can have thousands of babies in two weeks. Does that make them superior to heterosexual humans?

AMY LEWIS, VIA E-MAIL

I wonder how infertile straight couples fit on Mr. DiBello's equality scale? Would he deny them the right to marry? I don't believe he would. That is a double standard. Marriage between two loving consenting adults should be a right for all.

CHRISTOPHER M. LEONARD, VIA E-MAIL

The old saying, if it's broke ...

Longevity alone doesn't qualify the old, broken method a "tradition." Let open-minded people improve society and the institution of marriage. If the divorce rate is any indication of the troubles already plaguing the heterosexual institution of marriage, it is only about half as "sacred" as it could be — unless "till death do us part" isn't a part of the tradition anymore?

Horoscope

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. Under no circumstances should you permit an outsider to become involved in your personal family disagreements.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Regardless of any strong inclinations you may get to respond to some fiery comments made by another, be above it all. You'll be far more effective by ignoring what was said.

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Because your sales resistance tends to be a bit lower than usual, be aware of your weakness and keep your purse strings tight.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. A serious argument could erupt between you and your mate if you allow a subject to surface about which you have divergent opinions. Keep a lid on what you can't resolve.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. The ineptness of an interfering busybody could create problems for you. Be kind to others, but not to the point of allowing just anybody to stick their snoots in your business.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. An acquaintance with a chip on his or her shoulder could cause a nasty scene if you're not careful. Don't do anything to antagonize this person.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. Being an assertive person can have both good and bad results, depending on how you use that quality. Take care that you don't come off as being bossy to others.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. If you're not careful you could easily overreact to someone's opposing viewpoint. You know better than most that everyone is entitled to his or her own opinion.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. Ensure no one makes a financial commitment on your behalf without your consent, or it could cost you a pretty penny. You don't want to pay for another's mistake.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. Choose a partner wisely so that you don't get involved with someone who doesn't appreciate the value of teamwork. If you spot any hint of self-serving ways, go it alone.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. Adopting a poor mental attitude will make all distasteful assignments even more repugnant and harder to accomplish than they actually are.

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. Instead of making light of life as usual, you may tend to take everything far too seriously. Start looking for problems and you'll find them.

THE BAGS OF THE SEASON

Accessories aren't necessarily the first thing that comes to mind when one thinks of Zara. Cheap and cheerful versions of the season's trends, yes. But a fierce leather shopper? Not really. That might change, though, after its impressive spring/summer lineup of handbags which run the gamut from quirky, neon totes to chic, leather carryalls.

A Link to the recent past

'The Legend of Zelda' is back in 3-D with a game that shows off the greatest potential of Nintendo 3DS

Nineties nostalgia is in full swing. Bands like Pavement and Guided By Voices are back for another go-around. TV shows like "Beavis and Butthead" and "120 Minutes" are prepped for a return. Heck, even Newt Gingrich has once again plastered his ugly mug all over the airwaves. Nintendo has joined the fray with the 3-D remake of 1998's "The Legend of Zelda: Ocarina of Time," a game so good you are likely to lapse into a nostalgia-induced seizure.

First, the game itself. "Ocarina of Time" was widely recognized as one the best adventure games ever made. It still is. The gameplay is so timeless that it does more than hold up, it surpasses most modern releases. For the uninitiated, the game has you embarking on an epic time-spanning quest. This game shows off the "Zelda formula" in spades, which includes that perfect mix of puzzle-solving and combat.

▶ Oh no, Link! Watch out!

This version straddles the line between remake and reimagining. The game was rebuilt from the ground up and looks stunning, particularly in 3-D. The fields and dungeons of Hyrule really pop with that 3-D slider turned up. The gameplay remains untouched, aside from much-needed touch-screen integration. This version also includes some bonus content, including a second quest that repurposes much of the content. You are likely to get 40 hours of play out of this.

The 3DS is a great portable device that simply hasn't had any system-selling software. That drought is now over. "Ocarina of Time" is the perfect title to show what the system is capable of. The graphics look just about GameCube level and the gameplay is as great as you remember it. This remake practically oozes love and respect for the source material. Now let's bring ALF back.

NBA MOCK DRAFT

Metro has the scoop on who's going where in tonight's lottery round (7, ESPN) Cleveland will start fresh with Irving Three point guards in our Top 5 Still Jimmer Time in Utah

CLEVELAND
Kyrie Irving, PG, Duke —

The Good: Point guards are the new centers in today's NBA. And you really can't compete for a title without an elite one.
The Bad: Irving may not even be the best at his position in this draft.

MINNESOTA
Derrick Williams
SF/PF, Arizona
The Good: Best player on our board, and would form an unstoppable 1-2 punch with fellow man-child Kevin Love.
The Bad: Might not be here at No. 2 — if CLE can erase the memory of the last time they built around a 6-foot-8 forward, err, traitor.

UTAH
Brandon Knight
PG, Kansas
The Good: John Calipari-educated point guards are quick studies — just look at John Wall for proof.
The Bad: His athleticism is off the charts and he was a great finisher in the NCAA tourney. Still needs work on the outside shot and limiting turnovers.

CLEVELAND
Enes Kanter
C, Turkey
The Good: We're not saying he's Dirk Nowitzki ... but a 6-foot-11 big man that can hit a 20-footer is hip right now.
The Bad: He hasn't played organized basketball in two years, and the 19-year-old is already fighting back issues.

TORONTO
Kemba Walker
PG, UConn
The Good: Throw out the measurables and watch his NCAA tournament highlight reel. Huge heart, bigger playmaker.
The Bad: Can a 6-foot-1 point guard be the face of your franchise — in other words, how many NBA championships did Allen Iverson win?

WASHINGTON
Jonas Valanciunas
C, Lithuania
The Good: Probably the most talented big man in this draft — with a 7-foot-4 wingspan.
The Bad: He has $2.5 million buyout on his contract with Lithuanian powerhouse Lietuvos Rytas.

SACRAMENTO
Kawhi Leonard
SF, San Diego St.
The Good: Leonard fills an immediate need at shooting forward and his grit is drawing comparisons to Ron Artest.
The Bad: He can't step out and sink beyond 15 feet. Plus, Kings really want a point guard — does Kemba slip? — that they can pair with Tyreke Evans.

DETROIT
Jan Vesely
SF/PF, Czech
The Good: "Dunking Ninja" (Google it!) considered NBA-ready and Pistons will need to replace Tayshaun Prince.
The Bad: Questions abound about whether he can create his own shot and hold on to the basketball.

Storylines to watch

Knicks unlikely to trade up, will wait for Jimmer to fall
Billups and Fields only bargaining chips for D'Antoni

Jimmer Fredette made 124 3-pointers his senior year at BYU to earn Player of the Year honors. He can fill the perimeter gap left by Danilo Gallinari.

1 Who will the Knicks pick in the first round?

Sitting at pick No. 17 in what looks to be a thin draft makes predicting their selection a crapshoot.

Despite finally reaching the playoffs for the first time since 2004, the Knicks have plenty of holes to fill. Gutting your roster to obtain Carmelo Anthony will do that to a team.

Nevertheless, if the Knicks don't luck out and land a free-falling Jimmer Fredette, look for them to either move that pick for a lower-end first round selection and a second-rounder or just grab the best available player. Those names include Alec Burks of Colorado, Iman Shumpert of Georgia Tech or the draft's biggest sleeper, forward Bismack Biyombo of the Republic of the Congo.

2 Will they trade up or stay put?

This could be an option should the Knicks decide to part ways with last year's second-round pick Landry Fields, who management refused to include in last season's blockbuster deal for Carmelo.

About the only other moveable piece is Chauncey Billups, but his $14 million tag may be too rich for any team. The Knicks really handcuffed themselves with the Anthony deal, though that wasn't a bad strategy considering this weak class.

Nets take two

- Rd. 1, No. 27
  Trey Thompkins makes sense here. At 6-foot-10, he's an athletic target for Deron Williams.
- Rd. 2, No. 6
  Josh Selby, PG, Kansas

3 As rumors swirl, will they participate?

There have been some top names bandied about in trade rumors leading up to the draft, including Steve Nash and Tony Parker. But it'd be hard to imagine either heading to the Garden full-time next season.

Any moves including either of these former All-Stars would certainly include Billups and most likely Fields. Salary-for-salary, both Nash and Parker match up with Billups' price tag but pulling the trigger would take the Knicks out of the running for next summer's free-agent frenzy that includes top-tier point guards like Chris Paul and Deron Williams. Even though Donnie Walsh isn't running the show anymore for New York, that's a definite no-no.

NBA draft 2011

ON THE RISE

Iman Shumpert

- PG, Georgia Tech
- The junior floored everyone at the draft combine. The 6-foot-6, 222-pounder had the highest vertical jump and did the second-most reps on the bench press.
- He's a physical specimen teams are salivating over because he has a dream NBA body for a PG and can force his way to the tin.
- Needs to work on jumper; must prove he can play the point and run a team at the next level.

Chris Singleton

- SF, Florida State
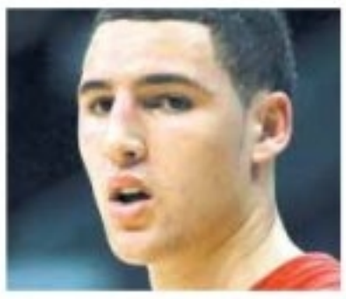
- At 6-foot-9, his offensive game is raw, but he can guard at least three positions at the NBA level right now. The junior was a lockdown defender on the big stage, helping FSU produce best field-goal defense in the NCAA tournament.



Klay Thompson

- SG, Washington State
- He's been compared favorably to Reggie Miller thanks to his skinny frame and shooting ability. He'll make plenty of 3s out of the gate, as he shot 39.8 percent from beyond the arc as a junior.
- Son of 1978 No. 1 overall pick Mychal Thompson, he has impressed teams with his professionalism.
- Needs to mature into more than a spot-up shooter and improve ball-handling (3.4 turnovers per game).

Jonas Valanciunas

- C, Lithuania
- Word broke this week he won't be coming to the NBA for at least a year. That sent the 7-footer from a likely top-five pick to borderline lottery selection.
- Needs to bulk up; only averaged 7.6 ppg and 5.4 rpg in '11 Euroleague.

Reggie Jackson

- SG, Boston College
- Perhaps no player was more intriguing midway through last season. The junior, though, wasn't able to work out for teams because of an offseason knee procedure and would not disclose medical records. He even declined sitdowns with GMs. Huge red flags.

Jon Leuer

- PF, Wisconsin
- The 7-foot senior was one of the best shooters (47 percent shooting) and scorers (18.3 ppg) in the country last season. But can he do it with NBA-level defenders on him? Workouts have said no.
- Perhaps no one was rooting harder for Dirk Nowitzki to put on a clinic this postseason. This big man can handle the ball, but he just lacks athleticism.

Possible trade could land another 'Isaiah'

- Knicks fans should not fear this dynamic sparkplug
- PG Thomas could end up being a late-round steal

Almost the same name, a completely refreshing game.

Isiah Thomas has made recent appearances in Knicks fans' nightmares, but Isaiah Thomas could give them something hopeful to wake up to next season. The Washington point guard will almost certainly be available to the Knicks at No. 17 in tonight's draft, but a trade could set them up to select him in the middle-to-late second round.

Thomas, who averaged 16.8 points and a dramatically improved 2.1 assist-to-turnover his junior season, could not only be a decent backup to Chauncey Billups, but a decent backup plan if next summer's run at Chris Paul doesn't work out.

"I know I'd fit in here and that up-tempo offense. Mike D'Antoni likes to run and play fast. And Chauncey Billups would be a great mentor to me," said Thomas, who came up clutch for the Huskies in March but is realistic about his draft stock. "There are lots of guys who don't get drafted but shine like [Trail Blazers guard] Wes Matthews. He wasn't drafted but still got a big [free-agent] contract."

DRAFT 11

A couple of other overlooked players:

Josh Selby, PG, Kansas
He was the No. 1 high school player two years ago. NCAA discipline and a foot injury are the only reasons he's not a lottery pick.

Nikola Mirotic, SF, Spain
A tricky buyout will likely keep him overseas for at least two more seasons, but the 6-foot-10 versatile beast is worth stashing.
